Here's your guide to narrating your story:

2. You can imagine any situation according to the Emojis Series and create your own short story.
3. Feel free to express your story in any language of your choice (Hindi, English, Hinglish, Punjabi).
4. Craft your story in a manner that resonates with the emoji series, while maintaining a respectful tone.
5. Rally your coworkers to join in on this lighthearted competition and inspire them to participate.

I had always wanted to bake a special cake for a special someone, and my daughter gave me the perfect opportunity. I crafted this cake on her first birthday, an occasion that will be cherished for years to come. Everyone has their own memories of their first birthday, and I'm grateful to have added one more to the collection. The ingredients for this cake weren't just flour and sugar, they were my emotions, love, and blessings for my daughter. This wasn't just a birthday gift, it was an indescribable feeling that words can't capture.

On a quiet Saturday in my last office, with most colleagues off-duty, a spontaneous idea took shape. A group of us decided to try something different. Despite my culinary inexperience, I bravely took on the challenge of cooking Maggi. What ensued was a comical journey filled with laughter, mishaps, and unexpected success. A memorable day of bonding over a simple meal! 🍜

Message From The Manager

Hello Team,

From my desk (which, let's be honest, has seen one too many sick leave approvals this month), I wanted to share a few thoughts. First, a big shoutout to everyone for their unwavering dedication. I've noticed a few of us feeling under the weather lately. Remember, your health comes first! Let's make sure we're taking those much-needed breaks, staying hydrated, and maybe sneaking in a few greens between those office snacks. 😊 Stay positive, test negative, keep those spirits high, and let's continue to support one another as we move towards better chapters of our organizational achievements and certainly...Event Of The Year. Here's to another month of brilliance, hard work, and hopefully healthier smiles around.

Stay well and shine on...because each one of you matters.
